OFFICIAL DECORATOR SELECTED FOR CHARLEROI'S CELEBRATION

Splendid display of Bunting
Flags and Electric Lights

STREET TO BE GAY WITH COLOR

At a meeting of the decorating committee of which George Leith is chairman for the home-coming celebration in honor of the returned soldiers of Charleroi and vicinity, which was held at the office of the West Penn company, W. T. Hardester, of Pottsville, was selected as official decorator for the occasion.

The committee along with Mr. Hardester outlined the character and extent of the street decorations, which will be placed on McKean and Fallowfield avenue. The decorations will consist of flags and bunting, while thousands of electric lights will add to the brilliancy of the scene. The decorator has pledged himself to have the decorations in place and the lights ready for use 24 hours before the celebration takes place.

It was decided by the committee to have electric lights placed on McKean avenue from First street to bridge, and on Fallowfield avenue from First to Tenth streets. These lights will be arranged in the form of arches which will be placed over the avenues at regular intervals. The flags and bunting will be placed on the various poles along the streets, with streamers over the avenues at different points. When completed, the entire arrangement is expected to be one of the finest displays of the kind ever seen in Charleroi.

In addition to the street decorations it is expected that all of the business houses at least in the lower sections of town, will be profusely decorated. Already some of the owners and tenants have made contracts with the official decorator, and work will begin in plenty of time to have them in place several days before the celebration takes place. It is the hope of the committee that this decoration will be so general that every building will have more or less display.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT AUTOMOBILE STOLEN

Automobile thieves stole the Ford automobile belonging to the State Highway department and used by the inspector of Washington county in his work. The car was taken in Washington Wednesday night, and the police of that borough have been notified and are looking for the machine. The license number on the car was 1064 and the number on the engine 2642,142. At the time the car was stolen it was parked on the streets while the employees who were using were at the Highway department office attending to some work.

WILL ADJUST LOSSES OF BENTLEYVILLE FIRE

The losses of the fire at Bentleyville, which it is now said will reach almost $75,000, have been turned over to A. H. Neaman, of Brownsville, for adjustment, by the insurance companies. This is the fourth large adjustment for Mr. Neaman since the first of the year.

Word has been received by Mrs. John Coulter of the arrival in New York on July 20th of her son Corp. Robert J. Coulter who is a member of the 11th Infantry 5th Division.

NEW LAW WILL AID BACKWARD CHILDREN

A system whereby handicapped children in the schools of Pennsylvania may be classified and given such special instruction as their mental and physical condition requires is provided in an amendment to the school code approved by Governor Spry on Thursday. It was drawn by the Public Charities Association, whose experts in mental hygiene embodied in it some ideas obtained at the Army camps and applied them to schools. The amendment will apply to all districts. Children who are tubercular and require open-air schools, the ones whose sight, hearing and speech is of such character as to necessitate special care, the retarded pupils and the incorrigible will be listed and examined in mental or medical clinics.

ALL CONSTABLES TO BE ELECTED

The terms of all the 77 constables in the various boroughs and townships in Washington county will expire on the first Monday in January, 1920, and their successors will be elected at the November election this fall. This means that the candidates for these offices on the various party tickets must be nominated at the primary to be held September 16. Usually there is a fight on for nomination in the different towns and townships for this office on the Republican ticket and in some cases it gets very lively.

Notice.

I will give a reward of $25.00 for information that will lead to the discovery of the party or parties that started the report that I had shot a boy on my farm while he was picking berries. The report is untrue, in every respect and the money will be paid to the one who can furnish me the information I request.

THE MILLENNIUM AT BROWNVILLE

The Brownsville Telegraph, commenting on conditions in the three towns, refers to what it calls the "new atmosphere" under prohibition. It says:

"With the borough jails empty and saloons sans customers, prohibition has brought an era of peace to the Brownsvilles unequalled in several generations. Barroom idlers have at least condescended to 'accept' jobs here and there, and it is possible for women folks to occasionally risk a trip through Neck without having to thread their way deviously and precariously through an interweaving knot of more or less bibulous persons.

"Even the industrious justices of the peace have felt the effects of the change and the squire's mills are grinding other grist than the sordid stuff which was wont to form the usual daily calendar.

"Some are using their leisure time in benefiting their community by making two houses grow where only weeds and rubbish were wont to thrive. Others again have found time to seek nature in her own surroundings, look to their gardens and occasionally harvest a few quarts of blackberries.

"With a few more months of this, millenium-like atmosphere, even the preachers may probably find themselves, like Othello, with their occupation—or at least that part of it, which consisted of denouncement of the drink and the advice to the drinkers—gone, for which it is sincerely believed they have no regrets.

FELL THROUGH STACK IS BADLY INJURED

E. Caralerano, of North Side, Pittsburg, engaged with his brother in erecting a stack at the Universal Steel Company plant, fell through the structure about 8:30 o'clock this morning and sustained severe injuries. Just how the accident happened is not stated, but in some way the unfortunate man lost his hold and fell through the stack to the ground below. The local ambulance was summoned and the man taken to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital. An examination of his injuries revealed the fact that two of his ribs were broken and his back severely injured. Whether this injury is a severe contusion or a break the attending physician was unable at the time to state. The injury is such a character, however, that one foot of the patient is paralyzed. A further examination is to be made to determine the full extent of the injury. Caralerano with his brother has the contract for the erection of the stack where the accident happened.

STATE SELECTS ITS PRIMARY ROUTE

A corps of engineers from the Washington office began this morning, the work of surveying from Lehigh towards Prosperity on the newly-chosen Route 109 of the state's primary system of roads. It has been definitely decided at Harrisburg that the Washington-Waynesburg highway will go by way of Prosperity, Fanner's Run and Sycamore instead of Sparta and Neshannock over the Amwell township route.

Plans for the highway will be made as speedily as possible and all be placed in readiness for the construction of the road early next year, if not before. Specifications will call for the most durable type now built by the state, of reinforced concrete, and when it is completed the road will be one of the most traveled in this end of the state, since it will connect all of Greene county with Washington and Pittsburg.

For several years Route 109 has been in the air, different communities between Washington and Waynesburg trying to secure it. When funds for its improvement became available, the State Highway department had to decide. It speedily completed its decision. It is an important link in the state primary system, which connects up all county seats in the state and is destined to be the starting point of many "feeders" as to improved road system develops. It is not a part of the Washington county system and will be built regardless of that.

REMOVING CELLS FROM OLD BUILDING

The cells which have done duty in the old police station for several years were removed today by borough employees. The material in the cells may be stored for a time, and later sold, if a market can be found for them. If not it is possible they may be sold as scrap. In clearing away the cells one of the workmen found a revolver and a small searchlight. The removal of the cells is preparatory to the borough surrendering possession of the property, which was sold several months ago, but which the borough has been occupying pending the completion of the new building. The borough officials expect to occupy the new building within a very short time.

CAR JUMPS TRACK; KNOCKS POLE DOWN

A railroad car which was being thrown on to a side track in the local freight yard this morning, opposite Fourth street, "split the switch" and was derailed. The car struck a telegraph pole and knocked it down at the same time breaking it in two, bringing down several telegraph wires with it. The car was loaded with gravel.

MEET TO DISCUSS HOSPITAL PLANS

A meeting of the board of directors of the Charleroi-Monessen hospital and the Charleroi campaign committee will be held at the new borough building next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, at which time plans and developments of the campaign will be discussed. Notices of the meeting were sent out today.

COWS KILLED BY AN ELECTRIC WIRE

Wednesday afternoon of last week five cows of a number that were pastured in a field belonging to the Diamond Coal company in Forward township, Allegheny county, a short distance from Elizabeth, were caught by a live wire of the West Penn Power company and instantly killed. The wire was one of the high tension line crossings the field that carries a voltage of 22,000. The wire had broken and the live end was hanging from the pole reaching almost to the ground. It was near a path traversed by the cattle going to their drinking place and it is supposed that in passing under the wire it touched them in rotation and killed them. These animals belonged to dairy herds and were quite valuable.

BUT LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET PRICES

Advices from the Pittsburg produce markets say that a general firmness of prices marked the produce yards and wholesale markets on Friday, the week-end generally having a tendency to keep prices at the level reached during mid-week. Few changes of consequence were recorded, potatoes being slightly lower at $7.75 and $8.00 a barrel, although that price was higher than the general average for the past week or so. Cantaloupes remained plentiful at prices ranging from $1.00 to $2.50 a crate and tomatoes will be much cheaper during the coming week. The butter and egg market was firm. It is expected that some change in price for butter will be announced today. Watermelons are still being received in large quantities at the yards and there is a good demand for them at prices ranging from 15 to 30 cents.

Card of Thanks.

In this way we wish to thank the friends and neighbors for the kindness during the sickness and death of our husband and father. Also we wish to thank those that sent the beautiful floral tributes, and the Washington Avenue Presbyterian choir.

Charleroi War Chest Dis- trict to Celebrate on August 21

FINE PROGRAM FOR OCCASION

The executive committee having in charge the arrangements for the celebration to be held in Charleroi on the 21st day of August in honor of the returned soldiers of this district met at the borough building Friday evening at which time a large number of details were disposed of. The date of the celebration, which has heretofore been somewhat tentative, was confirmed, and Thursday, August 21st, is the day to which all eyes are now turned, for on that date the people who live within the territory embraced in the Charleroi war chest district will unite in a home-coming welcome to the soldiers who served in the great war.

A general outline of the day's activities was also discussed, but the general plan is to have a parade of veterans, together with civic and fraternal organizations in the forenoon. At 12 o'clock it is proposed to serve dinner to all soldiers, arrangements for which are now under way.

In the afternoon the diversions will be of an athletic nature, to be featured by a ball game between two teams, one to be made up of service men, and the other to be selected by Arch Osborne. A further feature will be a boxing contest, also to take place at the ball park, all to be free to the people.

In the evening there will be aquatic sports at the bathing beach, which program will be made public at a later date.

Efforts will be made to have an airplane here for the occasion, and it is possible they will be successful. The executive committee took the matter up with the war department through Representative Temple, but were advised that owing to numerous accidents on the Fourth of July and the condition of affairs on the Mexican border the officials could not see their way clear to make an assignment of a government plane for the celebration. The committee however will take the matter up with companies controlling planes, and the chances are that the people of the community will have an opportunity to witness special stunts in the air on the day of celebration.

Committees will also be named for the other towns in the war chest district at Speers, Dunlevy, Vesta, Allenport, Stockdale and Roscoe, as well as North Charleroi, to secure the attendance of all soldiers from their communities and to interest the people of their localities in this celebration.

When the full program for the day's activities is announced it is believed that every feature will be

THE NEW "PERFIDIOUS"

The mantle of "perfidious Albion" has fallen upon or been eagerly put on by America, according to our late Teutonic enemies, who, though loudly lamenting that they are "broke" still seem to have plenty of money to employ in organized propaganda. The following highly entertaining observations are quoted from a recent issue of "The Vienna Bulletin," published by the Vienna Press Association, Ltd., the pronouncement having "Perfidious America" as its striking head:

"A horde of bandits have combined literally to plunder the population of Germany and German-Austria. The grinning spectacle of naked imperialism has dictated the proposed peace treaty of Versailles and St. Germain. That the infernal hatred of France against Germany would lead her to fall on the bleeding body of her foe was to be expected. This prey and pillage policy is nothing else than the bolshevism of imperialism. The Entente will be astonished how this bolshevism which they practice will develop in a sense by no means pleasant to them. The lightning of the general strike in Paris and the thunder of anarchistic bombs in America are the Mene Tekel that heralds the coming tempest. Mr. Wilson is playing an ignoble part in the world's history. The anarchistic bombs in America will ring in his ears. It is a poor fame for Wilson to have secured for America the succession to Great Britain's supremacy in the world. For he has secured it in moral regard also. Thus, as was formerly said 'Perfidious Albion' so will henceforward be said 'Perfidious America.' It must fill one with disgust to live in a time like this."

It is interesting to know that our late Teutonic enemies expect to revenge themselves upon us indirectly through the ravages of Bolshevism. Though we may feel reasonably confident that they will be disappointed so far as the United States is concerned we should be glad to be apprised of the means whereby they expect to strike in order that we may not neglect such measures of defense as enlightened self-interest will dictate. It is also interesting to know that in the opinion of our still active enemy propagandists President Wilson has "secured for America the succession to Great Britain's supremacy in the world. This is all the more interesting because of the repeated assertion of some Americans that Mr. Wilson, on the contrary, has strengthened Great Britain's supremacy and even limited the powers of his own country. And this gratifying as well as interesting to know that our enemy propagandists are 'filled with disgust to live in a time like this, for only by filling predatory Germans and Austrians to the brim with complete disgust and profound discouragement can the world secure its own safety."

HYPHONATED ROYALTY

Apparently the agitation against hyphonated royalty, begun in England during the war, has been effective, for it has been announced that the Prince of Wales and the Princess Mary will not look across international boundaries for their mates but will wed in the British nobility. Such announcement is reported in connection with the efforts of King Ferdinand of Rumania to secure a wife for his son Charles from some stable royal horse, efforts attended with great and unusual difficulties. English royalty has withdrawn from the international marriage market, as stated. The Russian princesses are now merely the "Romanoffs" if still alive. German princesses are similarly ineligible, many of them being in exile with their throneless sires, and most of the less important royalties are in trouble of one kind or another. It is said that King Ferdinand would like to pick the fair Yolande of Italy, one of the very few desirable princesses in sight, but choosing is not taking: there are difficulties in the way. When he plunged Europe into war the former Kaiser unintentionally dealt a heavy blow at hyphenated royalty as well as at thrones. According to report, there has been neither a royal marriage nor a royal betrothal in Europe since 1914. The great and changeable upheaval has left the matrimonial market embarrassingly narrowed. The intention of British royalty to marry at home—an example that might well be followed by other reigning houses—is an eminently sensible return to the custom of former centuries. It is wise both because suitable international mating is now very difficult and because a royal family is more fully trusted and safer in these troublous times with undiluted native blood in its veins.

TRUST-BUSTING TO COME

It begins to look as if the job of trust busting undertaken by the American people and their government a few years ago was left so incomplete, or was so largely undone during the war, that it will have to be tackled afresh. The Federal Trade Commission finds, for example, that the meat packers are steadily acquiring a monopoly of many of the chief food products of the country. Their grip is not confined to meats but is rapidly reaching out and fastening upon numerous other products named in the report by means of their control of 574 companies and their interest in 188 others. In response to the commission's findings the packers own up to the vastness of their expansions, but contend that such concentration of commercial power eliminates waste of effort, saves expense, makes for greater efficiency, renders smaller profits possible, and thus benefits the public by providing lower prices than could be secured in any other way.

This is the familiar argument of the advocates of state socialism, to which system in majority sentiment is opposed and the packers will have to be able to convert the public to such a view. If we can not trust the government to administer the food supplies of the country, still less can we trust a huge private combination which has nothing in view but the accumulation of wealth for itself. When Congress disposes of the pressing problems of the hour it is likely to be found necessary to take up for consideration the stern regulation of expanding monopolies and to do some more trust busting.

CONQUERING THE AIR

Another splendid and unprecedented achievement is added to the record of this wonder-year in aviation. First we had the first crossing of the Atlantic by an airplane. Next we had the first such crossing in a single night, without a mid-sea stop and without a line of guardships. Now we have had the first round trip, an airplane coming from England to America and almost immediately returning thither. Also, it is to be observed, there has been demonstrated the practicability of trans-Atlantic flights by both heavier-than-air and lighter-than-air vessels. Each type has its own advantages, the one in speed, the other in carrying indefinitely. The bearing of these interesting demonstrations upon naval construction should be obvious. The battle-ship, even the swiftest cruiser, must hereafter have protection against attacks from above, which it will not be easy to afford. The same is true of our coast defenses. What barrier can they present against invasion by a fleet of airships laden with explosives or poison gases, which can come from across the Atlantic, fly over our cities on their errand of destruction, and return without landing? The answer probably is that airships must be met by airships; wherefore our aviation service at once rises to the highest importance for national defense—Harvey's Weekly.

"We shall presently see 'Made in Germany' marked upon goods, but we are not likely to see another war made in Germany."—Philadelphia Record. If the German manufacturers have sense enough to come in out of the rain we shall not see "made in Germany" on goods sold at retail from that country for a long time to come.

The lure of aerial adventure grows stronger with the $50,000 bounty offered for a flight to South Africa and the Indies in addition to the nine prizes aggregating $200,000 already offered for a variety of aerial achievements.

CAN EAT WAY THROUGH LEAD

Beetle of Remarkable Power Would Make Man Much Trouble If It Existed in Quantities.

Probably most persons who read the newspaper story of the discovery by a Santa Barbara (Cal.) telephone engineer of an insect that eats its way through sheet lead thought it in the same class with the ancient hoax about "the worm that eats steel nails," which was perpetrated about a quarter of a century ago and still reappears at intervals. One of the editors of Engineering News, however, has seen the insects, a number of which are held in captivity in lead boxes with glass covers, to see how long it will take them to bore their way to freedom.

The insect is a slender black beetle about a quarter of an inch long, with hard wing covers and of innocent and placid demeanor. It is said to light on a lead-covered telephone cable and bore a tiny round hole through the lead sheath and the paper insulation down to the copper. Possibly it believes the cable to be a part of a tree or vine into which it is accustomed to bore holes, and so it proceeds to bore through the lead as it would through the bark. Some persons think that concealment is its motive; others that the boring process is preliminary to egg depositing.

The lead borers have been heard of in South Bend, Ind., and Rockford, Ill.; in Omaha, Tacoma, Portland and San Diego; in Florida and in Australia. The fact that numbers of them have been found in old lead foil tea packages leads one to suspect that the family is of oriental extraction.—Youth's Companion.

DAYS OF ATHENS' GREATNESS

Emperor Hadrian Did Much Toward Making the City Religious Center for All Hellas.

It was during Hadrian's first visit to Athens (about 134 A. D.) that he made plans for rebuilding the majestic temple of Olympian Zeus. He added significantly to the adornment of Athens with many temples and other buildings; he built an aqueduct to bring the water of Cephissus to the city, and at Corinth he constructed aqueducts to bring to that city the water from Lake Stymphalus. Sparta was then the most important city in the Peloponnese, and the visit of Hadrian there is established by an inscription. He was absent from Rome three years at this time, returning by way of Sicily, where he made the ascent of Mount Etna to witness a sunrise. Gracchus believes he has evidence that proves Hadrian to have been in Athens again in the year 132 A. D., and he assumes that the great temple of Olympian Zeus was then completed and dedicated. Not for centuries had Athens known any such magnificent festival as that of the dedication of this Olympieion. It was made a national festival, with representatives from every city in Greece, as the Olympian Zeus was the new religious center for all Hellas. The dedicatory address was delivered by Polemon of Smyrna, who was the most celebrated Sophist of his day.—From "Athens, the Violet-Crowned," by Lilian Whiting.

Gold Leaf on Wood.

The following method is given for applying gold leaf on wood: The surface must first be carefully cleaned and prepared, and when quite dry treated with the appropriate gold size, which is laid on with a very soft hog's hair brush or camel's hair pencil; several coatings are applied, each being dry before the application of the other, and finally smoothed down. To this surface the gold leaf, cut into suitable sizes, is taken up by the tip of a special brush and laid on, being pressed down by a dry camel's hair brush, and so on piece after piece until the whole surface is covered. Finally, when dry, certain parts of the gilded frame are burnished with a flint or agate burnisher specially made for the purpose. The whole operation requires a certain amount of experience to obtain satisfactory results.

The Perfect Mind.

Truth is bigger than our minds, and we are not the same with it but have a lower participation only of the intellectual nature and are rather apprehenders than comprehenders thereof. This is, indeed, one badge of our creaturely state that we have not a perfectly comprehensive knowledge, or such as is adequate and commensurate to the essence of things; from whence we ought to be led to this acknowledgment that there is another perfect mind or understanding being above us in the universe from which our imperfect mind were derived and upon which they do depend.—Ralph Cudworth.

Not a Joyous Occasion.

A pig belonging to James Newman of San Francisco was unusually obstinate, and he tried calling it "nicotinic" and a lot of other pet names but the animal snorted and refused to come along. Then its owner called the hog names that indicated he was very angry, but the harsh words had no more effect than those of honey. At last Newman lassoed the animal and was at once arrested for cruelty to animals. "The hog didn't seem to be very cheerful, judge," the policeman told the judge. "He was on the way to his own funeral," Newman pointed out. "You wouldn't expect him to be laughing, hardly, would you now, judge?"

The First Gas Respirator.

The first apparatus to enable persons to enter a poisonous inflammable atmosphere was called an "aerophore" and was the invention of M. Denayrouse, a French inventor and scientist. It was first tested at Chatham, England, 44 years ago, and was reported successful. Vast improvements on this device, which comprised an air pump, large and flexible tubing, have since been made and these have saved the lives of hundreds in mine accidents and other disasters where rescue work would be impossible without their use.

The World Is Cheerful.

Doctor Johnson's old schoolmate said that he could not be a philosopher because "cheerfulness was always breaking in." Our world of mankind cannot be that kind of a philosopher, either for the same reason. It may have its moods and depressions, or prove to the utmost the reasonableness of despair; but there is an inexhaustible well-spring of vigor within it, and vigor is another word for joy.—From the Contemporary Review.

Sleep and the Brain.

It used to be thought that sleep happened because the circulation of blood through the brain grew so feeble that this, the seat of consciousness, could work no longer and sleep took place. Many years ago a surgeon studying the subject watched the failing circulation of the brain through a hole in the skull of a sleeping animal. Yet this is only effect, not cause. The brain has less blood because it sleeps; it does not sleep because it has less blood.

Dark Ages.

The term is applied to a portion of the Middle Ages, including the period of about 1,000 years from the fall of Rome to revival of letters in the fifteenth century. It is generally regarded as beginning with invasion of France by Clovis, 486 A. D., and closing with invasion of Naples by Charles VIII in 1495. Learning was at a low ebb during this period.

Time Is Money.

In Korea, both among prosperous Christians and among those to whom money is a hazy and infrequent visitor, a favorite subscription blank is one which says: "I promise to give — days to church work this year." The days thus given are devoted to evangelistic services or to the building of churches and schools.—World Outlook.

Orientalists Believe in 13.

Thirteen has no terrors for Orientalists. This was shown in Seattle, Wash., when the little Japanese sailing vessel Kashima Maru arrived in port from the Orient with a crew of exactly 13 men aboard. Officers of the vessel explained that 13 is considered in the Orient just like an even dozen or a score when it comes to manning vessels or inviting wedding guests.

Bright Silver.

Silver will be found brighter if wiped directly from clean, hot, slightly soapy water. Silver may be boiled in a bright aluminum pan with several small pieces of zinc or in a special silver pan with salt and soda. These methods clean the silver and it can be polished afterward.

Burning Truth.

Said the facetious feller: "These golf fanatics get a lot of satisfaction out of reducing their strokes from last season, but the real joy of life comes from being able to reduce the number of tons of coal from the winter before."

Tea Testing.

To ascertain whether artificial coloring matter has been added to tea, place a quantity on white paper and rub with knife to a fine powder. Now brush the paper with a brush and if any prussian blue has been used there will be little streaks on the paper.

Handicap Worth While.

When a handicap becomes the fulcrum over which we pry our success with the long iron bar of determination it ought to make us shake hands with the hindrance and say, "Thank you! You have helped me out fine!"

Symbol of Firmness.

You can't push a mile and you can't pull him. As an example of firmness what better do you want? A mile sure has the courage of his convictions.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Salute to the Flag.

The salute to the flag is given by raising the right hand, palm outward, until the index finger is even with the lower edge of the forehead, and standing at attention.

It might be a good idea for housekeepers to consult the produce market list in the daily papers. In this way they would be kept informed as to the prevailing wholesale prices of vegetables and fruits. This is the vegetable season and if prices do not assume a reasonable basis there is little prospect of any betterment later in the season.

With plenty of melons in the Pittsburgh markets selling at low prices.
Charleroi ought to be able to profit by this condition of affairs and buy these offerings at reduced prices.
Watermelons were so plentiful on Thursday that they were offered in the produce yards at 10 cents each.
What is the price in Charleroi?

Robert Callahan has been elected as delegate to represent the West Side street car men at the Amalgated Association convention to be held in Chicago. Freeman Johnston will represent the men of the Pittsburgh & Charleroi line.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Walters and son Emerson attended the Odd Fellows picnic at West View Park and will visit over Sunday in Sharpsburg.

Don't Wait to Do Good Deeds.
The good deeds we would do are brightened and made more prolific of beneficial results if we carry them out while the enthusiasm of our generous impulse is upon us. Have we not all experienced the warm desire to succor; postponed to a more convenient time (for us)—then dreaded for days until we finally drag ourselves to an accomplishment that makes of kindness a pitiful treadmill and bestows no sweet graciousness upon the recipient, who innately feels the irksomeness of our beneficence?

World's Famous Streets.
A certain difference of opinion appears to exist as to which is the most beautiful street in the world. Among those mentioned may be mentioned: "The Strand," Edinburgh, from which the city received her nickname of the "Athens of the North"; the Via X X Septembre, Genoa; Sackville street, Dublin;
the Avenida Callao and the Plaza Mayo,
both in Buenos Aires; the High Street,
Belfast; and the Unter den Linden, Berlin.

Glasses for Appearance Sake.
"Miss Bessie, if you are going to town today, I wish you would buy my sister, who lives in the north, a pair of glasses." "Why, Annie," replied the young lady addressed, "I could not get your sister a pair of glasses. She must have her sight tested so that the glasses may be suitable." "Oh," said Annie reassuringly, "she wrote me that
"Get the nose fits her nose!"

HE KNEW WHO CRACKED SAFE

Log-Hauler's Suspicious Basis of Good Joke on One Popular Indianapolis Citizen.

The return of Major Fred Bates Johnson to civilian life in Indianapolis recalls a story about him that has been bottled up long enough.

In the days before he was a major or a captain, or even a private, he used to go down to Salem for week-end visits with Walter Crum, particularly in the seasons when the strawberry or the fried chicken or the sassafras crop was ripe. His comings were frequently, if not often, unannounced, but he knew all the signs and pass words into Crim's office and lumber yard, and he would go in and wait for the coming of one or the other member of the firm, or telephone to see whether there was room for him up "at the shack."

One Saturday morning he came in in this way, and it happened that while he was down on his knees trying to put back a roller that had slipped from the legs of one of the office chairs a log-hauler arrived on the scene. Being of an inquisitive disposition, the log-hauler tried to find out what a stranger was doing down on his knees in Crim's office, but, as all who know Major Johnson will easily believe, the information which he received was not wholly satisfactory.

And on Sunday night Crim's safe was cracked!

Early Monday morning, as soon as the news of the robbery became known, the log-hauler came rushing down to the lumber yard.

"Say," he called, excitedly, "I can tell you who did that! There was an awful suspicious looking fellow in here Saturday morning when nobody was around, a little chap with yellow hair and great big glasses. I'll bet he was the guy that cracked 'er." But the informant left the office somewhat crestfallen when he was told, in no uncertain language, just who that "suspicious-looking fellow" was.—Indianapolis News.

HOW INDIANS FIGHT "FLU"

Heroic Remedy Which Unfortunately Does Not Always Seem to Have The Desired Effect.

While Americans of convention and medical knowledge are bundling themselves up and conducting a civilized fight against influenza throughout the nation, other Americans are discarding convention and clothing for the same purpose out where homes of men are far apart.

On the Flathead reservation in Montana when a descendant of warriors feels the symptoms coming on he flatfoots it to his teepee. He grunts terse orders and a squaw squats before the fire and hashes up a concoction in a five-gallon can, which is a brew of balsam fir boughs mixed with one part of more or less illegitimate whisky.

Then he saunters to the "sweating-teepee." A large vessel of water is placed in the center of that rag house and into the vessel are dropped red-hot stones. The medicine is then ready. The Indian who sneezed drinks the brew, inhales the steam, whoops with gusto and races for the creek.

Neither the ward nor the government has anything on him as he plunges into the cold creek water. He crawls out, dripping, shivering and "cured." The funeral usually is held on the following day.

Monument to Mrs. Eddy.

A pyramid of granite, weighing approximately seventy-five tons, has been placed on the old Mark Baker farm at Bow, N. H., as a memorial to Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, says New York Evening Post. The block was quarried at North Concord, and is said to be the largest ever cut. In the rough it weighed more than 100 tons.

It will be anchored on a concrete base on the Bow plateau overlooking the Merrimac valley, and will measure seven feet nine inches in height, including the base. The base is ten feet square. The pyramid is placed in exact orientation.

Four bronze tablets affixed to each face of the pyramid bear suitable inscriptions.

Balkan Whiskers.

Prof. Clive Day of Yale, who is a specialist on the Balkans, said in a recent interview:

"There is a Balkan story in praise of cleanliness. The scene is a brigand's camp.

"That prisoner there," said a brigand, pointing his knife at a young Turkish captive, he combs his whiskers every morning."

"The other brigands listened in astonishment and the captain said:

"I don't see how the fellow stands it. Way, I only comb my whiskers once a month, and then it nearly pulls my chin off."

Sentry Box on His Farm.

A Cook county farmer whose farm is not far from Chicago has built a sentry house in the corner of his place from which he can see what is going on near any part of the farm. He occupies the upper room every night and aided by a dog, knows when anyone is sneaking around the premises. The lower part of the sentry house he uses as a workshop. A row of windows in the upper part gives him a wide view of all the surrounding country. Except for these precautionary measures, he says, stragglers from the city would steal him poor or by carelessness set fire to the farm buildings.—Capper's Weekly.

SAYS "CHARMERS" ARE FAKES

Writer Describes Method by Which East Indians Pay on Ignorance of Their Fellows.

A method by which snake charmers dupe ignorant people in India is thus described: One of them puts a harmless snake, in a stupefied condition, into a house, and his companion then tells the women of the house that he has noticed a poisonous snake there. The people are alarmed and offer a reward to the snake charmer to remove the snake. He declares it to be a deadly poisonous one and asks a good sum of money for the exploit, which, he says, may cost him his life. The reward is fixed and the money paid. The snake charmer, wearing only a loin cloth, commences to play on his bagpipe. The snake, previously rendered harmless, crawls into the middle of the room, and the snake charmer in catching it says that he has been bitten and falls senseless. His companion comes forward and puts a snake stone on an incision previously made for the purpose on the man's finger. The snake charmer at once recovers and gets up. His audience is much astonished and gives a big present to the cured snake charmer, who departs with the snake and the profit he has made.

NURSE HAD INGENIOUS IDEA

Surely If Use of Makeup Was Ever Justified, It Could Be Defended In This Case.

A laugh is going the rounds over the stunt pulled by one of the attendants at the orphanage who had waxed enthusiastic in the work of finding parents for her little charges.

On this particular occasion she had interested a young couple in a three-months-old baby and they had promised to call the following day with a view to taking the infant if she was the dainty dimpled cherub the attendant said she was.

And in the meantime the baby contracted a cold, which, on the day she was to be inspected, had left her thin and pallid. The nurse knew that the child's chances for being adopted were very slim.

Suddenly she hit on an idea. A lip stick and a box of rouge. The very things to make the pallid Nancy into a rose-faced cherub.

And so the fairy godmother, being a sophisticated person, painted the lily, and Nancy, with a complexion like roses and cream, charmed her prospective parents and everyone was happy.—Los Angeles Times.

Greatest Bliss Is Congenial Work.

There is no greater happiness in life than doing the work you love. It matters not what the work is—to some women it is embroidery, or writing a book, or baby tending, or studying chemistry, or cooking, or keeping a house polished. It does not always happen that we have great ability in the thing we enjoy doing—although the chances are that this is so. For nothing stimulates you to continued effort in a piece of work more than the consciousness that you do it well.

And so if you are unhappy—genuinely unhappy—in the work you're doing, try to find out what it is that you'd prefer to do. If there is nothing else in your mind, then perhaps your discontent is only temporary. But if you sincerely wish to do some other definite piece of work, you have a legitimate grievance and you owe it to yourself to pave the way for a new shot at a new occupation.

The Open Window.

Mr. Walter Winans, writing in the Saturday Review on the open window, says: The Russian peasants, in whose huts I have lived in very severe winters, seal up the windows hermetically during the whole winter (double windows), and they have warm water to wash in, and do not break the ice to wash as people fond of open windows have to do. In Petrograd some years ago twelve Englishmen started a bathing society to break holes in the ice of the Neva and have a cold plunge every morning. Before the spring they were all dead, and I have never heard of a case of a foreigner (the Russians, of course, never do so) who lived through a Russian winter and slept with his bedroom window open.

Family Life.

Not for nothing have we been grouped in families, neighborhoods, nations; and he who will not recognize the divinely appointed nearness to himself of some over others, who thinks himself to be a cosmopolite without being a patriot, a philanthropist without owning a distinguishing love for them that are peculiarly his own, who would thus have a circumference without having a center, deceives his own heart, and affirming all men to be equally dear to him is indeed affirming them to be equally indifferent.

Dog Birds.

Dog-birds are small, brownish denizens of the New South Wales southeastern tablelands, between Lake George and the Snowy mountains. They derive their name from the manner of their language. They may easily be mistaken for a family of young terriers having an early lesson in barking. A ragged stick nest, with lateral entrance, not readily distinguishable from any old bundle of twigs suspended in the fork of a tree, forms the kennel of the feathered poodle, and there he rears broods of pup-birds year after year if unmolested.
